

Ms Fegs From My POV!

UMUTEME OGHENEFEGO, VA
Mentor

A Little Intro

Ms. Fegs is one of the VA mentors whose guidance, accessibility, and willingness to support interns made a lasting impact on my internship experience.

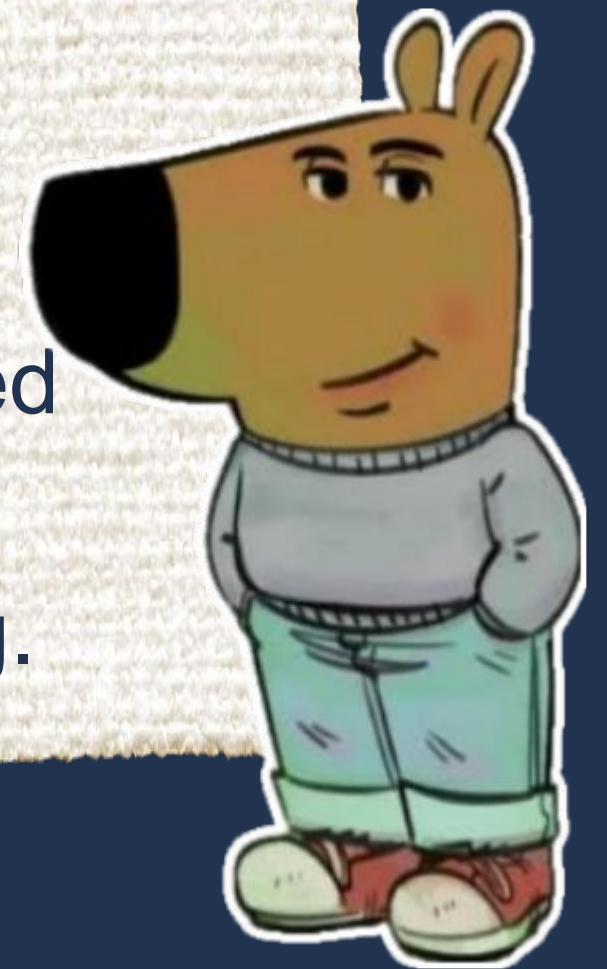

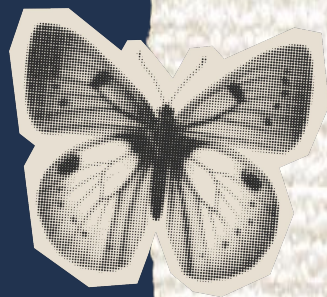

What stood out most was her approachability. While some people naturally appeared difficult to approach, Ms. Fegs consistently created an environment where interns felt comfortable asking questions, seeking clarification, and learning from mistakes.

Her Mentorship Style

Ms. Fegs' mentorship style can be described as:

- Welcoming and approachable
- Honest and direct
- Encouraging
- Focused on growth through action

Rather than simply providing answers, she often guided interns toward discovering solutions themselves. This encouraged independent thinking and problem-solving.

Key Internship Moment

One piece of advice from Ms. Fegs that significantly influenced my internship journey was:

"Join huddles and talk to people."

I took that advice seriously and participated in both casual and task-related huddles.

As a result:

- I learned from other interns' experiences
- I gained different perspectives on tasks
- I built relationships within the internship community
- I became more confident communicating with others

Looking back, following that advice was one of the best decisions I made during the internship.

Leadership in Action: The Content Brief Story

After the second rejection, I was confused and frustrated because I genuinely could not identify what was wrong.

I reached out to Ms. Fegs for guidance.

Instead of giving me the answer directly, she advised me to review briefs that had already been approved.

Although I had already done that before messaging her, something about her response helped me calm down, reassess my work, and approach the task differently.

I revised the brief again, submitted it, and it was approved.

This experience demonstrated her ability to guide rather than simply solve problems for others.

Memorable moments

Some moments I will always remember:

- Her famous dislike for the phrase "Tamper justice with mercy" thanks to the VA interns.
- Her encouragement to join huddles and interact with others.
- The calm guidance she provided when I was struggling with my Stage 8 content brief.

These moments made her mentorship both impactful and memorable

Lessons for Future VAs

Lessons I Learned from Ms. Fegs:

- Build relationships and network intentionally
- Participate actively in your community
- Ask questions when you are stuck
- Stay calm when receiving feedback
- Focus on learning, not just completing tasks
- Growth often comes from figuring things out yourself

Thank You, Ms Fegs

Thank you for being reachable when others weren't. For the calm that stopped my panic. For pushing me into huddles I didn't know I needed. How far I've come is partly because of you.
